ALBANY.

Rumor of the Early Extension of the Texas Central Road. Correspondence of the Gazette.

ALBANY, TEX., Dec. 1 .- Our county officers-elect have all qualified within the week past.

Our graded school under the supervision of Prof. Dalrymple is a model educational institution and deserves the highest commendation from our

From several paragraphs that have appeared in the papers during the past week, together with rumors current on the streets, we are led to believe that the management of the Texas Central road contemplate an early extension of their road-bed from Albany to a con-nection with the New Orleans & Den-ver road somewhere in the Northwest. Without speculating on the truth of this report we cannot help indulging in a few thoughts as to the probable effect that such an extension will have en our town.

Beyond the end of the track, west of town, is a large hole of lasting water owned by the company; near this natural reservoir is a level plot of ground containing about six acres, also owned by the company. That neither the hole of water nor the plot of ground can be purchased, is a fact learned by our citizens who have made offers for them. Add to this the fact that Wainut Springs is now the said of a Wainut Springs is now the end of a division, and that Albany is the proper distance to establish another division, we leave the reader to judge the results.

Albany is thirty-three pulse from is thirty-three miles from Crystal Falls, where an inexhaustible supply of coal can be mined. The dis-tance can be traversed by a road without requiring a single bridge to be built and but few cuts and flis, mak-ing a road both cheap and practicable. This would make the Central road independent of the Gould system for its dependent of the south and avenue through which the south and avenue through which the south and avenue through portion of the southeastern portion of the state can be supplied with necessary fuel. This argues very strongly in favor of a branch road from Atbany to Crystal Falls.

Albany is now a town of about 2000 inhabitants. It will naturally be the supply point for one year from the beginning of the extension, and as the road progresses, forwarding and commission houses and wholesale dealers will establish in our town to supply the Western trade. This will give the town a permanency of growth that can not be effected by the transient trade incident to railroad extensions. If this is a reasonable conclusion, who can say that Albany will not grow and prosper until a second Fort Worth in size will occupy its present site?

The new court-house has been furnished with a fine set of black walnut furniture to each office, while the district court room is resplendent in benches and tables, making a display of comfortable elegance second to no structure of the kind in Northwest Texas.

A small party of Englishmen, direct from "old England," have just located north of here and will open up a stock farm. The leader of the party, Mr. Godfrey, informs your correspondent that a number of his countrymen will follow him in a short time. It is their intention to locate a colony and follow farming and stock raising.

Mr. S. P. Gates of Mussissippi, and his seven sons, are here prospecting with a view of locating in this county. Mr. Gates says that hundreds of people in northern Mississippi are preparing to come to this state, and that the opening up of the Queen and Crescent route to Shreveport gives the people of his state and that the opening up of the Queen and Crescent route to Shreveport gives the people of his state and treat line to Texas, and he believes that this will add much to the population and wealth of our state.
